MAUI SUGAR COMBINATION.

Not a Foregone Conclusion .- Interview with Mr. M. T. Alexander.

Mr. S. T. Alexander, of Oakland, California, one of the principal stockholders of Paia and Haiku Plantations, left on the Australia for home after a brief visit to the islands. He had come to town from Maui this morning by the steamer W. G. Hall. It was not till a few moments before the Australia's departure that a BULLETIN reporter found Mr. Alexander, and put a few hurried questions to him regarding the scheme for consolidating Paia and Haiku Plantations with Spreckelsville Plantation.

"I hear that there is strong opposition to the amalgamation scheme?" was the first feeler put forward after introducing the subject.

"The matter will not be decided till next month," was the reply.

"The Hawaiian law requires unanimous consent of the stockholders, I believe. Is the opposition to the scheme very determined?"

"Well, the opponents are open to conviction. They will listen to argument, but as yet do not see their way to consenting." "They say you are one of the chief objectors, Mr. Alexander." "Still I am amenable to reason," he laughingly answered. "Do you think that free sugar in the States will have as serious an effect on the price as some here apprehend?" "That is a matter that is very difficult to judge in advance. There is much difference of opinion on that question.' The reporter heartily thanked Mr. Alexander for his courteously imparted information, given as it was in the midst of the throng on deck, the esteemed capitalist's friends pressing forward to bid him goodbye, and the band music making conversation difficult.

BAND VACATION.

The annual month's vacation of the Royal Hawaiian Band begins today, their farewell performance being at the departure of the Australia. Prof. Berger, bandmaster, left on that steamer to spend his holidays on the Coast. He and the boys well deserve their respite, and there is no doubt the community will be repaid for the concession, in the renewed vigor of our excellent band on resuming duty.

THE PARADISE OF THE PACIFIC.

The Paradise of the Pacific was issued yesterday. The number contains an excellent cut of His Majesty. The variety and scope of the matter in the present issue will lay before the foreign public a bird'seve view of the advantages, customs and amusements of our mid-ocean kingdom. A Thanksgiving ode is contributed by Mrs. Emma L. Dillingham, and a pretty lyric by Miss Ruth Ward. The editorial notes are crisp and to the point. Hawaiian legends, some of which are the prettiest in the world, give the paper a quaint local tone, while several creditable articles on Hawanan industries and progress will serve to give the outside world a true insight into our national merits. The paper continues an improvement on past numbers and is destined to do Hawaii much benefit abroad. Not the least notable of the contributions is an article by a native Hawaiian, Mr. F. J. Testa, on the "Sacred Pavement of Liloa."

STEAMER DEPARTURE.

The Oceanic S. S. Australia was detained with the loading of freight till 12:40 o'clock. A large number of residents and visitors were on the wharf to see the departure. There was the usual ceremony of decking departing friends with leis. Among those most heavily weighted with the floral tributes being Hon. H. A. Widemann, Hon. E. Muller, Bandmaster Berger, Prof. Sauvlet and wife, and Mr. H. von Holt. The band boys sang "Aloha oe" as a good-by to Mr. Berger, and. after a classical programme, played American, British, German and Hawaiian national airs.

His Majesty was one of the latest in coming ashore, followed by Hons. S. Parker, E. C. Macfarlane, C. O. Berger and John E. Bush. Other public men noticed at the departure were, Their Excellencies John A. Cummins and C. N. Spencer, Ministers, and Hons. Paul Neumann, J. B. Atherton, D. W. Pua, L. W. P. Kancalii, Robt. W. Wilcox, J. K. Kahookano and W. H. Cummings. As the steamer awang out and the Hawaiian Band finished, the U. S. F, S. Charleston band on board that ship was heard playing "Home, Sweet Home,"

Full Report of September Term, 1890.

Pursuant to an order of the Chief Justice postponing said term from September 4th to the third Monday in November, the Court for this judicial circuit was opened for business on Monday the 17th instant at 9 o'clock, a. m. Present on the Bench, the Honorable A. Francis Judd, Chief Justice and Chancellor, sitting alone without a Circuit Judge. The absence of Hon. F. S. Lyman, Circuit Judge, is owing to the above postponement and this being the season requiring his attendance upon the several tax appeal boards in his circuit.

There were present the following members of the Bar: His Excellency A. P. Peterson, Attorney-General, and C. Creighton, Deputy Attorney-General, as Crown prosecutors; Hon. A. Rosa, W. A. Whiting, D. H. Hitcheock, W. C. Achi and Wm. Kaaemoku. Hon. Henry Martin, the District Magistrate, was also Daniel Porter of Hilo, clerk of the circuit, was at his post, and E. G. Hitchcock, Sheriff of the Island, was present with his host of deputy sheriffs in charge of the several persons accused and witnesses for the prosecution.

The following persons were sworn to act as court interpreters: Kim Char, Chinese; Wakah, Japanese, and Henry Smith, Hawaiian. The first case tried was that of the King against Awa, Aiau and Ani, charged with the murder of one Akong in Keauhou, North Kona, on August 10th last. The evidence showed that Awa and Akong, the deceased, were partners in the business of tobacco raising, and were living together in the same house which was burned, and that the other two Chinese lived in another house some thirty fathoms away. The principal witnesses for the prosecution were the coroner of the district, Mr. Muller, a school teacher, who attended to the wounds of two of the defendants and Dr. Mouritz who, happening to be in the district, was called to examine the body of the deceased which had been buried some fifteen days. The trial of this case occupied all of the afternoon of the first day and all of Tuesday, when at five o'clock in the afternoon of the second day, the jury found a verdict of not guilty, two jurors dissenting, who were for manslaughter in the second degree. W. A. Whiting appeared for the defendants, who were discharged from the Sheriff's custody.

The body of Akong, a Chinaman was found dead and charred amid the ruins of his hut in the region back of Keauhou, Kona, where he and Awa his partner were planting tobacco. Awa was found almost dead with 23 cuts on him, mostly on his arms. Aiau and Ani lived in their house some 150 feet away from the house that was burned. Their story in defense was that, owing to disappointments in their business, Akong was anxious to sell out to Awa, but this was refused by Awa. That night, August 9th, Awa was awakened by receiving cuts on his head from a pork cleaver in the hands of Akong, who slashed at him until he was helpless and then set fire to their house, and tried to prevent Aiau (who came to the rescue on hearing Awa's cries for help) from coming into the house.

Aiau received two cuts on the head from Akong, but then got into the house and pulled Awa out. He returned to get Akong out, but the flames and smoke of the burning house made this impossible and they left Along to his fate. This narrative was not capable of being previously contradicted by the prosecution and accordingly the defendants were acquitted.

The next case tried was Olomia vs. Kanuku, libel in divorce. The Court granted a decree of divorce on the ground of desertion and utter failure to support. W. C. Achi for plaintiff, no appearance of or for defendant.

The following disposition of other cases was made:

The King vs. Kalanawahine (k) and Kaheana (w), adultery. Appeal from the District Court of North Kona. Defendants withdraw their appeal.

The King vs. Wm. Manu. Seduction. From the District of North Kona. The Attorney-General declined to present an indictment. W. C. Achi for defendant.

The King vs. Laenni and seven other defendants, malicious injury. Appeal from the District Court of North Kona. Prosecution enters as nolle prosequi. Some of the defindants did not appeal but paid their tines. A. Rosa for defendants,

The King vs. John Kealoalii, forgery. Commitment from North Kona. Continued to next May term at Hilo. W. C. Achi and Wm. Kaaemoku for the defendant.

The King vs. Keawe Kamakee, crucky to salmals. Appeal from the District Court of Pana. Entered a nolle prosequi.

The King vs. Kamaawa (h) and Kanon (w), adultery. Appeal from the District Court of Popa. Parties having married defendants are dis-
